

Lupus Changes the Life of a Former Model

We love sharing inspiring stories of courageous people who are living the best lupus life they can. Many of us go through moments in our disease where we feel helpless and unsure of things. Lupus takes so much from us physically, but not a lot of people speak out about the emotional toll this horrible disease can have on us.

Today, I came across an inspiring story that was published by Fox 5 News in Atlanta, Georgia about a brave woman named Antonette Currie. Antonette has been suffering from lupus for the past decade and has evolved into a beautiful woman who has learned to accept her lupus diagnosis and all the physical and emotional scars that came with it.

Watch her beautiful lupus testimony below.